Art Unit: 3653

1. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter. In regard to this, claim 5 recites a method and provides the apparatus in claim 1. Claim 5 represents a combined process and a machine (apparatus), and is, therefore, not one of the four statutory inventions (process, machine, manufacture or composition of matter).

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bronander in view of Focke et al. Bronander discloses the loading carriage having a divider 8 to divide the loading carriage into a first reservoir A and a second reservoir B. The first and second reservoirs communicate with first and second feed compartments 18 as shown in figure 1. Note the plunger 21 to eject the group of the cigarettes from the first and the second feed compartments. After ejection of the group of twenty cigarettes, is wrapped in a single package (see page 2, lines 32-34). To provide that Bronander's first and second reservoirs would accommodate different types of cigarettes would be obvious in view of the teachings of Focke et al's use of the cigarette loading carriage (magazine), which has feed reservoirs 20-23, which would receive up to three different types of cigarettes (see col 3, lines 1-15). The effect of Bronander's reservoirs receiving the different types of cigarettes would provide that the ejected group of cigarettes and therefore the package have a mixture of the different types of cigarettes therein so that a variety of different types of cigarettes may be dispensed from the package. In regard to claims 2,3 and 7, to provide that Bronander's apparatus package such products as cigars or herbal cigarettes, would be obvious as a mere choice of utility to so package any desired product, and, therefore, this utility expedience is not afforded any patentable weight. Finally, in regard to claim 9, to provide that Bronander's package hold a given amount of the different types of cigarette products would be obvious as a mere choice of utility to so wrap and dispense any desired amount of the types of the cigarette products, and, therefore, this utility expedience is not afforded any patentable weight. , . ***.

4. Manservisi et al is cited showing in figure 5 the use of odd and even numbered stacking of the cigarettes in a package.
